USE OF COPYRIGHTED/TRADEMARKED MATERIALS

In recent years, there has been an increase in the use of brand names, logos, and quotations on exhibits at county and state fairs. Many of these (Olympic rings on banners, candy wrappers on nutrition posters, "Just Do It", etc.) are copyrighted or trademarked. Anytime you see the letter "c" with a circle around it, the owner of the material holds a copyright. Similarly, all rights to use trademarks are protected by either "TM" or letter "r" with a circle around it.

If an individual or group feels that they must use copied material, they should contact the original source, explain how their property will be used, and request written permission so that the material can be used in good faith. The holder may require a user fee. The written permission to use copyright and/or trademark material must be attached to the exhibit or displayed if used in a public presentation.
